

MAHS FIELD SCHOOL IN UNDERWATER ARCHAEOLOGY

Dive with MAHS and participate in an actual field project. The Field School is open to all MAHS members who have successfully completed the Introductory Course in Underwater Archaeology and are certified scuba divers.

The Field School consists of a 2-day on-site session which is typically held on an actual archaeological site, depending upon resource availability. The course provides the student with experience in shoreline and open water reconnaissance, survey, mapping, sketching and other activities that may be site specific. The cost of the course is $150.00.

See the MAHS web site -- <http://www.mahsnet.org> -- for updates.
